P&G Manufacturing Gear Award

The customer was looking for an award that showed the connected nature of its company from the employees to the factory to the company as a whole. The Gear Award was a perfect representation on how it took all 3 groups, working in unison, to make the gears (aka – company) turn. With our UV printing process the images on each gear were really brought to life in full-color.

A manufacturing company was looking for a modern-looking award that tied in their corporate colors to recognize excellence within their company. With our ability to color match the stone we were able to capture their blue in the synergy award. Next, using our UV printer we were able to keep their logo in full-color utilizing the iconic photo-like image in their logo. The final product was a uniquely colorful award that stood out on the recipient's desk.

Habasit Service Award

Needing a custom award to recognize the service of its employees the company and its distributor turned to StoneyCreek for a creative design. Known for their development of conveyers, belts and gear solutions for companies around the world we decided to capture this in stone by showing a gear chiseled out of the corner. Below, two grooves were added to the front to hold triangles containing the milestones of service. This allowed employees with longer tenure to stand out more than those with fewer years of service.
